CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

The Press and Registration of Books (Amendment) Act, 1955 (55 of 1955) was brought into force on July 1, 1956 by a notification of the Government of India. Simultaneously, the Registration of Newspapers (Central) Rules, 1956 were promulgated and the Registrar of Newspapers for India (also known as the Press Registrar) was appointed with headquarters in New Delhi.

Central Authority

The main purpose of amending the Act was to vest in the Central Government the authority to administer provisions relating to newspapers under the Press and Registration of Books Act, 1867. The Amendment Act does not, however, in any way affect the powers of State Governments. They would not only continue to shoulder the entire responsibility for the enforcement of the provisions relating to books and printing presses, their responsibility for enforcing the provisions relating to newspapers would also remain unaffected. Only the rules made by State Governments, if has been provided, should not be inconsistent with the rules made by the Central Government.

The Central Government which was given rule-making powers under the amending Act, took over the function of co-ordinating the administration of the Act on a uniform basis throughout the country, and also became primarily responsible for the collection of information and statistics about the Press in India, in particular, for the study of circulation trends in different categories of newspapers and the trends in the direction of common ownership of more than one newspaper.

The functions assigned to the Central Government by or under the Act were to be discharged by the Registrar of Newspapers for India and such other officers under his general superintendence and control as might be necessary.

Background

The amending Act was largely the outcome of the recommendations of the Press Commission which, in their report submitted to Government in 1954, considered it essential that there should be some statutory authority responsible for the collection of reliable statistics regarding the Press in the country and their periodical publication. They had also recommended that the Government of India should appoint an officer for the whole country who will co-ordinate, collate and publish statistics with regard to the newspaper industry.

Since its inception, the Press and Registration of Books Act, 1867 had been administered by the States, and although the Act provided that the printer of every newspaper shall deliver to a named officer of the State Government two copies of each issue of such newspaper, adequate arrangements had not been made in most States to verify whether copies were in fact being received and to pursue the defaulting cases. It was not possible, under the circumstances, to get authentic statistics about the total number of newspapers and periodicals in existence or particulars about their periodicity, language, contents and circulation.

When the Press Commission started work on the preparation of a consolidated list of newspapers in the country in October, 1952, it took them over a year of persistent and intensive efforts to compile a list but they did not vouch for even this as final and free from inaccuracies. In the course of their work the Commission found that "apart from the differences in practice in different States, there is a general laxity in the checking of the filing and the registration of books and periodicals..... In many cases the information supplied by the State Governments was grossly inaccurate and never upto date". The Commission, therefore, concluded that there should be a radical change in the administration of the Act.

Earlier, in 1948, the Press Laws Inquiry Committee, which had been set up by Government to inquire into the Press Laws, made certain recommendations for amending the Press and Registration of Books Act, 1867. Based partly on these recommendations and partly on suggestions made by State Governments which had experienced practical difficulties in the working of the Act, the Press and Registration of Books (Amendment) Bill, 1952 was introduced in Parliament on November 18, 1952. Meanwhile, the Press Commission, which was appointed on September 23, 1952 and which submitted their Report on July 14, 1954, reviewed the entire position regarding the working of the Act. While substantially endorsing the provisions of the amending Bill, 1952 they made certain further recommendations for the amendment of the Act. Accordingly the above Bill was withdrawn and instead the Press and Registration of Books (Amendment) Bill, 1955 was introduced in Parliament in November, 1955. It was passed by the Lok Sabha on November 22, 1955 and by the Rajya Sabha on December 5, 1955. It received the assent of the President on December 29, 1955.

Main Features of the Amending Act

The amending Act makes certain provisions for practical contingencies like temporary changes in the place of printing or publication. It also provides that a declaration in respect of a newspaper should specify, in addition to the title of the newspaper, the language in which it is to be published, the periodicity of its publication and other particulars which might be prescribed. It further provides that a declaration in respect of a newspaper shall be void if the newspaper does not commence publication within a specified period, and the declaration shall cease to have effect where in any period of three months, any daily, tri-weekly, bi-weekly, weekly or fortnightly newspaper publishes issues the number of which is less than half of what should have been published in accordance with the declaration made in respect thereof. Declarations in respect of newspapers published at longer intervals would cease to have effect where the newspaper has ceased publication for a period exceeding twelve months.

The amending Act provides that a declaration made and subscribed under Section 5 shall not, save in the case of newspaper owned by the same person, be so authenticated unless the Magistrate is satisfied from such inquiry as he thinks fit to make from the Press Registrar or otherwise that the newspaper proposed to be published does not bear a title which is the same as, or similar to, that of any other newspaper published either in the same language or in the same State.

Every Magistrate before whom a declaration is made in respect of a newspaper is required under the law to forward a copy of that declaration duly attested by his official seal to the Press Registrar. Under the Act, the Press Registrar is required to maintain in the prescribed manner a Register of Newspapers containing particulars about every newspaper published in India. After relevant entries have been made in the Register in respect of a newspaper, the Press Registrar is required to issue, as soon as practicable thereafter, a certificate of registration in respect of that newspaper to the publisher. A provision has also been made authorising the Press Registrar to supply a copy of any extract from the Register to an applicant in such form and manner as might be prescribed.

Every publisher is required to deliver free of expense to the Press Registrar one copy of each issue of his newspaper as soon as it is published, and also furnish an annual statement and such other returns, statistics and information as the Press Registrar may from time to time require. The publisher is also required under the law to publish in the newspaper at such times and such of the particulars relating to the newspaper as may be specified in this behalf by the Press Registrar.

Registration Rules

New provisions of the amended Act require that certain forms and particulars should be prescribed by the Central Government. These relate to:

- (a) prescribing the particulars which a declaration made and subscribed under Section 5 may contain;
- (b) prescribing the manner in which copies of any declaration attested by the official seal of a Magistrate may be forwarded to the Press Registrar;
- (c) prescribing the manner in which copies of any newspaper may be sent to the Press Registrar under Section 11B;
- (d) prescribing the manner in which a Register may be maintained under Section 19B and the particulars which it may contain;
- (e) prescribing the particulars which an annual statement to be furnished by the publisher of a newspaper to the Press Registrar may contain;
- (f) prescribing the form and manner in which an annual statement under clause (a) of Section 19D, or any returns, statistics or other information under Section 19E, may be furnished to the Press Registrar;
- (g) prescribing the fees for furnishing copies of extracts from the Register and the manner in which such copies may be furnished;
- (h) prescribing the manner in which a certificate of registration may be issued in respect of a newspaper;
- (i) prescribing the form in which, and the time within which, annual report may be prepared by the Press Registrar and forwarded to the Central Government.

The Ministry of Information and Broadcasting published the draft Rules made under Section 204 of the Act in a Gazette of India Extraordinary on April 23, 1956 and invited comments and suggestions from persons concerned within a month. Copies of the Gazette notification were circulated to newspaper organisations e.g. the Indian and Eastern Newspaper Society, the All India Newspaper Editors Conference, the Indian Language Newspapers Association and the Indian Federation of Working Journalists as well as to publishers of newspapers and periodicals numbering about 5000. Over a hundred individual publishers of newspapers and periodicals and some organisations sent in their comments. Most of the suggestions were accepted and suitable modifications made in the revised Rules which provided for the return only in which such information and statistics were to be called for annually as were required for the maintenance of an up-to-date Register of Newspapers. In furnishing details about circulation exemption from the obligation that the return should be countersigned by a Certified Accountant or a qualified Auditor had been given to these newspapers. Here the average number of copies printed per publishing day did not exceed 2000. A simpler procedure had been evolved for the delivery of issues of newspapers to the Press Registrar.

To enable newspapers to acquaint themselves and comply with the relevant provisions of the amended Act and the Rules framed thereunder, immediate steps were taken to supply copies of the Press and Registration of Books Act, 1867 as modified up to 1st April, 1956 together with copies of the extraordinary issue of the Gazette of India containing Registration of Newspapers (Central) Rules, 1956 to all known newspapers published in the country. The publishers were also requested to address all enquiries concerning the Act and the Rules to the Registrar of Newspapers for India whose office had been established in New Delhi.

At the same time the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting forwarded to all State Governments for their information and guidance copies of the amended Act and the Registration of Newspapers (Central) Rules, 1956. It was suggested that arrangements might be made to get the Act and the Rules translated in the regional languages and published in the State Gazettes. Copies of translations it was further suggested, might be made available to the regional language newspapers.

Annual Report

According to Section 19G of the Act read with Rule 11, the Press Registrar is required to submit to the Central Government on or before the 30th April of each year, an annual report containing information and statistics about the Press in India, and in particular, circulation trends in different categories of newspapers and the trends in the direction of common ownership of more than one newspaper. Since the Act came into force on July 1, 1956 it was provided that the annual report to be submitted on or before April 30, 1957 may relate only to the period from July 1 to December 31, 1956.

Organisational Problems

The initial task of collecting authentic information in respect of newspapers supposed to be in existence on July 1, 1956 involved correspondence with as many as 6000 publishers, most of whom had to be addressed three to four times. The next phase was the scrutiny of information collected result of this correspondence and its proper collation serve as reliable data about the Press in India the work involved required provision of adequate staff to perform the duties, necessary equipment to maintain record and accommodation. Owing to difficulties in this respect the time within which the information obtained in the field was to be processed, it has not been possible to carry out a thorough sifting and sifting of data or to make an elaborate collation and common ownership of newspapers. In this Report, covering the first six months of the operation of the Press and Registration of Books Act, is more descriptive in character.

CHAPTER II

REGISTER OF NEWSPAPERS

One of the objectives of the recent Amendment (1955) of the Press and Registration of Books Act, 1867 and the consequent appointment of the Registrar of Newspapers for India was to facilitate the collection of reliable statistics and other particulars about newspapers published throughout the country. Among other things, the amending Act enjoins upon the Press Registrar to maintain, in the prescribed manner, a Register of Newspapers containing the following particulars about every newspaper published in India, namely:—

- (a) the title of the newspaper;
- (b) language in which the newspaper is published;
- (c) periodicity of the publication of the newspaper;
- (d) the name of the editor, printer and publisher of the newspaper;
- (e) the place of printing and publication;
- (f) the average number of pages per week;
- (g) the number of days of publication in the year;
- (h) the average number of copies printed, the average number of copies sold to the public and the average number of copies distributed free to the public, the average being calculated with reference to such periods as may be prescribed;
- (i) retail selling price per copy;
- (j) the names and addresses of the owners of the newspaper and such other particulars relating to ownership as may be prescribed;
- (k) any other particulars which may be prescribed.

In order to help the Press Registrar in the collection of particulars for the Register of Newspapers, the Act and the Rules framed thereunder provide that:

- (a) Magistrates shall furnish to the Press Registrar a copy of every declaration, made and subscribed under sections 5, 8 or 8A of the Act, duly authenticated by their official seal; and
- (b) publisher of every newspaper shall,
 - (i) furnish in the prescribed form an annual statement containing particulars about the newspaper;
 - (ii) supply a copy of each issue;
 - (iii) publish specified particulars relating to the newspaper in the first issue after the last day of February of each year; and
 - (iv) supply such returns, statistics and other information as the Press Registrar may from time to time require.

Compilation of Preliminary List of Newspapers

For the purpose of compiling the Register as well as enforcing various provisions of the amending Act, it was necessary to prepare a consolidated list of newspapers in existence in the country on the date the Act came into force.

In the first instance, the records of the Press Information Bureau of the Government of India were examined to ascertain if such a list could be compiled from the available data. It was observed that the information available there was not up-to-date and had been compiled at different periods in respect of different States. Accordingly, all the then 27 State Governments (except the State of Jammu and Kashmir to which the Act does not apply) were approached on November 13, 1955 to furnish the latest statements containing particulars of newspapers published in their territories. It was emphasised that the statements should be up-to-date or at least contain particulars correct on December 31, 1954.

Only five statements were received in the month of November, 15 in December, 1955, three in January and one each in February, July and November, 1956. Five State Governments supplied information relating to the year 1953; two of them soon followed it up with that for 1954 but the remaining three did not do so in spite of repeated reminders. One State Government did not furnish any information.

Apart from the fact that most of the State lists were 18 months old and some even older, the manner of tabulation and the nature of particulars given differed from State to State. Most of them did not give full description of the periodicals; some of them gave only the name of the editor, others the name of the publisher and yet some others only the name of the proprietor. In many cases, the addresses given were care of printing press. Thus, the particulars, in many cases, were either inadequate or out of date for a reliable list to be prepared. Nevertheless, a list had to be improvised out of this ill-assorted data for mailing purposes which did not brook further delay.

As stated earlier, in May, 1956, copies of the draft rules were forwarded to all newspapers supposed to be in existence according to the lists supplied by State Governments. Subsequently, in July, 1956 copies of the amended Act and the Rules as promulgated were sent to all newspapers. Of about 4,000 daily, weekly, fortnightly and monthly newspapers to which these letters had been addressed, 460 were returned either with the remark 'insufficient address' or that the paper had ceased publication. Some publishers who received these communications intimated that their papers had ceased publication on different dates prior to the enforcement of the amending Act. Necessary changes were effected in the provisional list in the light of information regarding the cessation of publications. The list at this stage showed a total number of 5,468 newspapers of all periodicities including quarterly, half-yearly and annual publications in the country.

Statement of Facts

To collect authentic particulars essential for inclusion in the Register, publishers of newspapers were called upon under Section 19E of the Act to furnish the latest information about their publications. This step was necessary to correct the lists supplied by State Governments and to bring them up-to-date.

A proforma 'Statement of Facts' was prepared in which details were to be filled in, by the publishers, of the name of the newspaper, date of establishment, language, periodicity, days/dates of publication (in the case of publications other than dailies), names of printer, publisher and editor, exact location of the premises where printing was done, place of publication and retail selling price. Excepting the date of establishment, all other particulars were the same as given in the form of declaration prescribed under the amended Act. Copies of the proforma 'Statement of Facts' were issued to publishers of about 5,500 newspapers in September and October, 1956 and were supplied on demand to publishers of such newspapers as were not included in the list and information about whom became available subsequently.

Though the information was called for within two to four weeks, completed 'Statements of Facts' from only 2,201 newspapers were received by the end of December, 1956, while 52 newspapers intimated that they had ceased publication. Compared with the provisional list on the basis of which the forms had been despatched, this showed a shortfall of about 3,200 newspapers. Reminders were issued to these defaulting newspapers in the last week of January, 1957. In a Press Note issued on February 4, 1957, the publishers were again reminded of their obligation to furnish to the Press Registrar the required information demanded in the proforma 'Statement of Facts'. In response to these measures 839 more completed forms were received by the end of March, 1957 while 185 more newspapers intimated that they had ceased publication.

Revision of the Provisional List

Apart from intimation regarding the cessation of newspapers, the information received in the 'Statement of Facts' from newspapers revealed many changes in periodicities, language of the publications, addresses and the names of publishers and printers. Besides, a large number of circular letters addressed to publishers along with copies of the draft Rules, the Act, the final Rules, and the proforma 'Statement of Facts' had been returned for want of sufficient address or on account of the cessation of newspapers.

On the basis of information thus collected, the provisional list was thoroughly revised and a fresh list of newspapers, incorporating the necessary additions and alterations, was compiled. Since the reorganisation of States had taken place on November 1, 1956, the lists had to be recast on that basis. It took some time to compile the fresh list in proper alphabetical order on the basis of reorganised States as well as according to periodicity and language of newspapers.

In order that the lists may be further scrutinised and brought uptodate, the help of State Governments was sought. Lists of newspapers according to different periodicities and languages for each State were forwarded to them for scrutiny and necessary alterations and additions.

State Governments were requested to indicate whether newspapers included in their lists, of which copies were not being received by the Press Registrar, were in existence or not. If these were still being published, whether the State Governments were receiving copies and, if so, they were requested to indicate the periodicity and language of the newspapers, and the correct address of the publishers. Separate lists of newspapers in respect of which circulars were returned with the remark that the address was inadequate or the publication had ceased or the addressee was otherwise untraceable, were also forwarded to State Governments for verification.

Some of the State Governments responded promptly and furnished details about the existence or otherwise of the newspapers listed and also gave information about additional newspapers which were not originally included in their lists. Many States, however, failed to supply the necessary information presumably owing to their preoccupation with urgent problems arising out of reorganisation and activities connected with the general elections. By the end of March 1957, only six States had furnished the required information.

Annual Statement

Of all the provisions of the Act, the most important from the point of view of the Register of Newspapers is the obligation, under Section 19D, placed on the publisher of every newspaper to furnish to the Press Registrar an annual statement in respect of his newspaper or each of his newspapers containing specified particulars in a prescribed proforma [vide Form II appended to the Registration of Newspapers (Central) Rules, 1956]. This statement which pertains to a calendar year, is required to reach the Press Registrar on or before the last day of February of the following year. The Registration Rules provide that the statement to be submitted on or before the last day of February, 1957 need relate only to the period from July 1 to December 31, 1956.

Compared to the form of declaration and the ad hoc proforma Statement of Facts' which contain only selected particulars, the Annual Statement contains all the particulars prescribed for inclusion in the Register of Newspapers. The Annual Statement ensures the supply of the latest information and changes, if any, during the year regarding the various particulars relating to a newspaper.

In early February, copies of the form of Annual Statement, comprising three parts and covering 17 main particulars, were printed and supplied to newspapers borne on the revised list. The forwarding letter contained detailed instructions for filling the statement. It was explained that separate forms were to be filled for each newspaper/periodical even if they were owned by the same proprietor or concern. Similarly, separate statements were to be filed if the same paper was published at more than one centre, or if it had different editions in different languages. Several editions of a newspaper/periodical published at one centre were, however, to be treated as one paper.

By the prescribed date, that is, February 28, 1957, completed Annual Statements were received from 1,961 publishers of newspapers. Compared to the response in respect of the 'Statement of Facts' this marked a better performance, though it fell far short of the total number of newspapers in existence. Some of the newspapers asked for extension of time-limit owing to difficulties they experienced in filling the Form, in particular, in getting the declaration relating to circulation countersigned by a Chartered Accountant or a qualified Auditor. No extension could, however, be granted as there is no such provision under the law, but statements filed by publishers after the due date continued to be received and by the end of March, 1957, 584 more statements became available.

The information obtained in these statements gave further material to verify and bring uptodate the lists of newspapers and particulars in respect of each one of them.

Delivery of Copies of Newspapers

Another source of authentic information about newspapers and whether these were regularly published is the obligation of every publisher, under Section 11B, to deliver a copy of the newspaper to the Press Registrar within 48 hours of its publication. The receipt, entry in relevant registers, and filing of these publications, besides their scrutiny to check the proper observance of the provisions of the Act, involved considerable amount of work. The Press Commission in their report had envisaged the appointment of a Press Registrar for each State, in addition to the Registrar of Newspapers for India for the administration of the Act. But, to start with, it was decided that the Central Organisation alone be set up and that Regional Offices of the Press Information Bureau should be entrusted with the task of receiving regional language newspapers on behalf of the Press Registrar. Accordingly, Rule 5 provided that

- (a) Copies of the issues of newspapers published in Hindi, Urdu or English and of newspapers published in two languages, one of which is Hindi, Urdu or English, shall be sent to the Press Registrar in New Delhi,
- (b) Copies of the issues of newspapers published in any of the regional languages specified in column I below shall be sent to the Officer incharge of the Regional Office of the Press Information Bureau, Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, Government of India at the place specified in the corresponding entry in column II and the officer shall take delivery of such newspaper on behalf of the Press Registrar —

- (c) Copies of the issues of newspapers published in any other language shall be sent to the Press Registrar in New Delhi.

This simplified procedure for the receipt of issues of newspapers was evolved to facilitate delivery of copies by publishers. The procedure was incorporated in the final Rules, copies of which had been supplied to all newspapers supposed to be in existence. Attention to this obligation on the part of the publishers and the procedure prescribed for it was also drawn in the Press Note issued on June 28, 1956.

During the quarter, July to September, 1956, copies of 1,333 newspapers only were being received by the Press Registrar as against about 5,500 newspapers supposed to be in existence. During subsequent months, the obligation of publishers in respect of the delivery of copies of issues of their newspapers was repeatedly brought home to them in the circulars and reminders issued on various matters. As a result, the delivery of newspapers steadily improved and the number of newspapers being received during the quarter ending December, 1956 reached a total of 1,823.

In a Press Note issued on February 4, 1957, reference was again made to the failure of publishers to observe the provisions of the Act in this matter, which, it was pointed out, was punishable under the law. Thereafter there has been a progressive improvement, the total number of newspapers being received at the end of March, 1957 being 2,800, only a few among them being those which started publication after December 31, 1956. The regular receipt of copies of issues of newspapers provided another check to scrutinise the list of newspapers and make additions and alterations to bring it up to date.

Finalisation of the List

The process of finalising the list of newspapers in existence on December 31, 1956 has thus continued over a period of nine months and is still continuing. Apart from 4,569 newspapers about whose existence some proof or the other is available, there are 2,001 newspapers about whose existence there is no such proof with the Press Registrar. These have been retained on the list on the authority of the State Governments who have either vouched for their existence on some ground or the other, or they are not yet in a position to definitely certify their cessation. It has also been found that many newspapers had come into existence during the interval when the State lists were compiled and the amending Act came into force, and there were many others which ceased publication during the period, and in fact there were many which had ceased several years ago. In some cases, the periodicities had been changed, but there was no record of this change in the State Governments' lists.

The final list of newspapers is based on a detailed scrutiny carried out with elaborate checks and cross checks applied to confirm whether a newspaper is actually in existence and is regularly published. Apart from information received from publishers in response to our communications, such as letters forwarding copies of the Act and the Rules, the proformas 'Statement of Facts' and Annual Statement, in many cases information was furnished by publishers on their own initiative on seeing one or the other of the announcements made by Government from time to time.

The statistics now available about the Press in the country bear some relevance to facts. Having started with inaccurate statistics, all possible precautions have been taken to eliminate newspapers that have discontinued publication and add those which have come into existence. It is, however, difficult to say that all those currently in existence have, in fact, been included.

Government Publications

So far newspapers and periodicals which fall within the purview of the Press and Registration of Books Act, 1867 have been dealt with. There is, however, a considerable number of publications issued periodically by different Departments of the Central and State Governments. In order that statistics and other information relating to newspapers collected by the Press Registrar be complete, it is necessary that all Government publications which conform to the definition of newspaper as given in the Press and Registration of Books Act, should be included.

The provisional list of newspapers compiled on the basis of lists supplied by State Governments contained some, but not all, Government publications issued by the Central and State Governments. The proforma 'Statement of Facts' which was issued to publishers of all newspapers in September, 1956 was also issued to Government Departments whose publications were borne on the provisional list. In the course of examination of particulars relating to Government publications received by the Press Registrar, it was noticed that while declarations under Section 5 of the Act had been filed in some cases, a number of Government Departments had presumed exemption from filing declarations on the basis of the Government of India, late Department of Education, Health and Lands Notification No. 2213, dated the 9th December, 1930, according to which the Governor-General in Council, in exercise of the powers conferred by Section 21 of the Press and Registration of Books Act, 1867 (XXV of 1867) and in supersession of the notification of the Government of India in the Home Department No. 1294, dated the 12th March, 1868, had been pleased to exclude all books and papers printed or published under the orders of Government or for official purposes from the operation of the whole of the said Act.

The question of exemption of official publications from the operation of the Act was recently raised by the Government of West Bengal. The State Government pointed out that the notification mentioned above was issued long before independence when the activities of Government lay within a limited sphere, and that any publication that came out at the time was for official purposes or of a purely official nature. Since independence, however, the activities of Government had greatly expanded in many directions. Governments both at the Centre and in the States now undertook printing and publication of papers and periodicals which though printed under orders of Government were intended more, and in many cases purely, for the public.

The Ministry of Information and Broadcasting which took over the administration of the Act from the Ministry of Home Affairs, after considering the matter, informed the State Government that in the case of publications issued by Government, the exemption under the Press and Registration of Books Act, 1867, need be applied only to (a) the filing of declarations in respect of any newspapers that may be published and (b) the supply of copies of publications which are intended purely for Government use. In the matter of supply of copies for record and reference, there was no objection to the supply to officers, designated in the Rules under the Press and Registration of Books Act, of copies of Government publications intended for the public.

In the light of this decision, the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, at the instance of the Press Registrar, sent on March 6, 1957 a circular to all State Governments and to the various Ministries of the Government of India and their Attached and Subordinate Offices pointing out that the recent amendment of the Press and Registration of Books Act was undertaken to facilitate the collection of reliable statistics about newspapers published in India. In the course of compilation of this information, it had been observed by the Press Registrar that many periodical publications issued by the Central or State Governments did not figure in the lists of newspapers compiled by State Governments. Particulars relating to all Government publications which came under the definition of newspaper under the Act should, therefore, be supplied to the Press Registrar in a special proforma. They were also requested to send a copy of every issue of the publication to the Press Registrar as and when it was published.

On the basis of data so far received information regarding 109 Government publications throughout the country has been collected.

Certificate of Registration

As stated in the beginning of this chapter, Section 19B of the Act read with Rule 7 enjoins upon the Press Registrar to maintain, in the prescribed manner, a Register of Newspapers. When particulars contained in a declaration have been entered in the Register in respect of a newspaper, the Press Registrar has to allot a registration number to that newspaper and issue a certificate of registration. Since copies of declarations in respect of newspapers in existence on July 1, 1956, were neither available nor could have contained all the particulars now prescribed even if copies were procured from the High Courts or other sources, information regarding the relevant particulars had to be obtained direct from newspapers in the proforma 'Statement of Facts'. Information on the remaining particulars required to be entered in the Register had to be collected from the Annual Statement. It has already been stated how both these statements have been slow in coming. Besides, particulars furnished in many cases, when scrutinised, were found to be incomplete or inaccurate and required verification. The statements received during the last few months are still being scrutinised. For these reasons, particulars in respect of many newspapers have not so far been entered in the Register of Newspapers. This work as well as the issuing of Certificates of Registration to newspapers will, however, soon be completed.

CHAPTER III

DECLARATIONS AND TITLES

Transmission of Copies of Declarations

In order to keep the Press Registrar informed from day to day about the coming into existence of fresh newspapers and thus help him in maintaining the Register of Newspapers upto date, the amending Act makes an important provision. It lays down that every District, Presidency or Sub-Divisional Magistrate who authenticates a declaration under Section 6 of the Act in respect of a newspaper should forward to the Press Registrar a copy of the declaration attested by his official seal.

Before the coming into force of the amending Act, the form in which the declaration in respect of a newspaper was required to be made and subscribed differed considerably from State to State in the matter of particulars to be filled therein. Rule 3 of the Registration of Newspapers (Central) Rules, 1956 prescribes the form of declaration to be made under Section 5 of the Act which has to be used in every State throughout the country. The declaration, besides specifying the title of the newspaper, the language in which it is to be published and its periodicity, has to give the name, nationality and address of the publisher, printer and editor and the retail price of the publication.

When the Act and the Rules framed thereunder came into force, there was misunderstanding among publishers of existing newspapers whether they were required, under the amending Act, to file fresh declarations. Many, without making any inquiry, filed fresh declarations in respect of existing newspapers on the new form of declaration. The correct position was explained to those who made inquiries and it was also clarified in a Press Note issued on August 6, 1956. The Act, it was pointed out, did not render existing declarations void. The relevant rule, prescribing the new form of declaration applied only to declarations in respect of new publications or of existing newspapers whose declarations might have lapsed for any reason.

Liaison with Magistrates

A circular was addressed by the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting to all State Governments drawing their attention to the new provisions contained in the Act and the Rules. It was specifically mentioned that the Rules prescribed certain procedure to be observed by Magistrates exercising powers under the Act, particularly the use of the new form of declaration for giving notice of intention to start a newspaper and the transmission by the Magistrate of an attested copy of the same to the Press Registrar. An adequate number of copies of the Act and the Rules had already been supplied to State Governments for circulation in the Secretariat and to District Officers exercising powers under the Act.

At the end of two months after the enforcement of the amending Act, it was noticed that authenticated copies of declarations were being received from only a few districts.

Another circular was issued to all State Governments on August 31, 1956, informing them that some Magistrates still continued to accept declarations in the old forms and that copies of authenticated declarations were not being forwarded to the Press Registrar.

The circular had some effect and copies of declarations started coming in from more districts. Following the reorganisation of States on November 1, 1956 and the re-adjustment of boundaries, it was again noticed that certain Magistrates were unaware of the instructions issued by State Governments. Towards the end of the year lists were compiled of districts in each State (reorganised) to assess how far the Magistrates were observing the procedure. This revealed that out of over 300 districts, copies of authenticated declarations had been sent to the Press Registrar by 81 districts only. The position was rather unsatisfactory in the majority of States.

Relevant lists showing the position in this regard in respect of each district were sent to State Governments with the request that the attention of all Magistrates in the reorganised States might again be drawn to the prescribed procedure and that the Magistrates who had neither made inquiries about the verification of titles nor sent authenticated copies of declaration should be instructed to send immediately to the Press Registrar authenticated copies of all declarations filed before them after July 1, 1956. If no declaration had been made and subscribed before them, the Magistrates were required to state the fact as such. As a result of the latest circular and the consequent instructions issued by State Governments, returns from 141 districts were completed. These consisted of authenticated copies of declarations from 120 districts accepted during the period July 1 to December 31, 1956 and reports from 21 districts stating that no declaration was authenticated there during the period.

Declarations Filed During the Period

During the six months after the enforcement of the amending Act, a total number of 1,656 copies of authenticated declarations was received from Magistrates all over the country. Of these, 181 had been made by printers, 62 by persons who had previously made and subscribed declarations and had subsequently ceased to be printers or publishers, 70 were duplicate declarations in respect of new newspapers necessitated by the change of printer/publisher before the commencement of publication, and 131 related to existing newspapers in respect of which declarations had been filed either under the misunderstanding referred to above or for change of printer/publisher or place of printing/publication or to effect change in periodicity. The remaining 1,212 declarations were from intending publishers of new newspapers.

Notices issued under Section 5(5) to the publishers who had made declarations for starting new newspapers revealed that 161 newspapers had commenced publication before December 31, 1956; 35 intimated that they did not intend to take up publication; and 77 commenced publication during 1957 and, therefore, do not figure in this report. In the absence of any reply from the remaining publishers, it is not known whether the proposed newspapers have commenced publication or not within the stipulated period. In many cases notices were issued only recently. This included over 300 declarations which, although filed during the period July—December, 1956, were received in bulk in March, 1957, in response to the latest instructions issued by State Governments at the request of the Press Registrar. The period under review, it may be noted, coincided with preparations for the general elections held later in February-March, 1957 and this accounts for the large number of declarations made for the starting of new newspapers. For the same reason many of the new entrants never commenced publication or soon went out of existence after the elections.

The highest number of declarations for new newspapers was received from Bombay (297), followed by West Bengal (137), U.P. (134), Madras (132), Kerala (108) and Delhi (80). No declaration was received from the Union Territories of Himachal Pradesh, Manipur, Tripura and Laccadive, Minicoy and Amindivi Islands. One declaration was received from Andaman and Nicobar Islands but it appears that the newspaper concerned had not actually commenced publication within the prescribed time-limit.

Authentication of Titles

Another important provision aims at affording protection to the titles of existing newspapers. The Act lays down that a declaration shall not, save in the case of a newspaper owned by the same person, be authenticated unless the Magistrate is satisfied, from such inquiries as he thinks fit to make from the Press Registrar or otherwise, that the newspaper proposed to be published does not bear a title which is the same as, or similar to, that of any other newspaper published either in the same language or in the same State. Thus, in respect of fresh declarations, from July 1, 1956, it became incumbent on every District, Presidency or Sub-Divisional Magistrate to make certain inquiries regarding the availability of the title in respect of which a declaration was proposed to be made, before authenticating it.

Reference to the Press Registrar

Though the proviso to Section 6 of the Act gives the option to the Magistrate to make inquiries about the availability of the title from sources other than the Press Registrar, in practice, reference to the Press Registrar seems essential since he alone can, on the basis of records of newspapers published in India maintained by him, advise whether the proposed title or one similar to it does not already exist, especially in the same language in any other State.

It was, however, noticed that during the period ending December 31, 1956, as against 1,212 declarations for new newspapers from 120 districts, only 562 references were received from Chief Presidency, District and Sub-Divisional Magistrates from 43 Districts, inquiring whether acceptance of declarations in respect of which they had received notices would contravene the provisions of Section 6 of the Press and Registration of Books Act. Obviously, 650 declarations from 77 districts had been authenticated by Magistrates without satisfying themselves about the availability of the titles. It is feared that in quite a number of such cases the authentication might have been in contravention of the proviso to Section 6 of the Press and Registration of Books Act.

Of the 562 inquiries received from Magistrates, 472 titles were found unexceptionable. In regard to 48 titles, the concerned Magistrates were advised that authentication of declarations in their behalf would contravene the provisions of proviso to Section 6 of the Act.

Certain references received during the period under review appeared to be applications for filing fresh declarations to revive defunct newspapers or such newspapers whose declarations had become void on account of irregular publication. There were 34 such cases received during the period under review.

Same Titles

A consolidated upto-date list of newspapers published in various languages in each State is an essential pre-requisite for the speedy disposal of inquiries relating to the availability of a title. Since such a list has been in the process of continuous revision and collation throughout the period under review, some cases referred to the Press Registrar regarding the availability of titles were unavoidably delayed.

In some cases a reply to the Magistrate who made the reference could straightaway be given if the proposed title was the same as that of an existing newspaper about whose existence and regular publication there was definite information on record. There were, however, many other cases in which a newspaper with the same title as the one proposed appeared on the provisional list but about whose continued existence or otherwise no definite evidence was available. In all such cases, in the absence of an upto-date list, the Press Registrar had to make inquiries from State Governments regarding the continuance or cessation of such newspapers. The State Governments had generally to refer the inquiry to the District concerned and, therefore, information was not readily available. Consequently, applications of certain publishers remained pending for several weeks before advice could be given about the availability of the proposed title.

Similar Titles

The problem of judging whether a proposed title is similar to that of an existing newspaper has proved rather elusive and intriguing, much depending on the meaning and the way of writing it in the particular language concerned. The main criterion applied in arriving at decision in such cases has been to prevent any possibility of mistake or confusion in the minds of readers. Thus, it was felt, that apart from avoiding obvious similarity between the wording and meaning of the proposed and an existing title no prefixing or suffixing of adjuncts to the main title, done with the object of circumvention, should be allowed. In view of the fact that Magistrates possessed better knowledge of local languages most cases involving similarity of titles were, with appropriate suggestions, sent back to them for final decision at their discretion. Some of the typical cases that came up for consideration during the period under review are described below :

- (1) "Vichar" (proposed) / "Vichari" (existing)—On a reference from the District Magistrate, Satara, the proposed title "Vichar" for a Gujarati newspaper was prima facie found to be similar to the existing title, "Vichari". The publisher contended that the two words carried different meanings, namely 'thought' and 'thinker'. The matter was left to the discretion of the Magistrate who allowed the proposed title.
- (2) "Basudhara" (proposed) / "Basundhara" (existing)—On receipt of this reference from the Chief Presidency Magistrate, Calcutta, in respect of the proposed title "Basudhara" of a monthly newspaper to be published in Bengali, he was informed of the existence of a newspaper published in Bengali bearing a similar title "Basundhara". In view of the difference in meaning of the two seemingly similar words the proposed title was, however, accepted by the Magistrate.
- (3) "Sudharak" (proposed) / "Sudharai" (existing)—In this case where advice was sought for the verification of the proposed title "Sudharak" of a newspaper in Marathi, the Additional District Magistrate, Kolaba, was informed of the existence of a Gujarati journal "Sudharai" published from Ahmedabad. It was, however, pointed out by the Magistrate that whereas "Sudharak" meant 'reformer', "Sudharai" meant 'Municipality'.

- (4) "Forum News" (proposed)/"Forum" (existing)—On inquiry as to the admissibility of the proposed title for an English monthly, the District Magistrate, Delhi was informed of the existence of an English monthly entitled "Forum", published from Bombay. The title was not accepted by the Magistrate.
- (5) "Educational Review and Reports" (proposed)/"Educational Review" (existing)—When apprised of the existence of the English monthly "Educational Review" published from Madras, which was considered similar to the proposed title, the District Magistrate, Delhi did not authenticate the title "Educational Review and Reports".
- (6) "Fortnightly Review" (proposed)/"Review" (existing)—On the advice of the Press Registrar that "Fortnightly Review" proposed for a new publication from Delhi was not very different from the periodical "Review" already published in English from Delhi, the District Magistrate did not authenticate the declaration filed before him.

Contravention of Proviso to Section 6

There have been instances where Magistrates accepted declarations without any reference to the Press Registrar or otherwise satisfying themselves that the newspaper proposed to be published did not bear a title which was the same as, or similar to, that of any other newspaper published either in the same language or in the same State. In some such cases the action of the Magistrate in accepting the declaration contravened the provisions contained in the proviso to Section 6 of the Act inasmuch as the new titles allowed by the Magistrate were the same as or similar to those of existing newspapers. A question arose whether such declarations, even if they had been authenticated, be cancelled. When the facts were brought to the notice of the Magistrates concerned, it was open to them either to cancel the authentication of the declaration or to ask the declarant to select an alternative title.

In one case, where the publisher was anxious to commence publication without delay, a Magistrate authenticated the declaration on the condition that in case the authentication contravened the provisions of the proviso to Section 6 of the Act, the publisher would select an alternative title. As it happened, a newspaper bearing the same title did already exist and the Magistrate then cancelled the declaration in question.

Panel of Titles

Verification of titles was facilitated whenever an applicant gave more than one title in order of preference for his newspaper. In the Punjab, for instance, the general practice is that the intending publishers give a panel of ten titles in order of preference to the Magistrate concerned. In such cases if the first, second, third or even fourth of the proposed titles were not found permissible, the fifth was allowed without delay. In some cases the eighth, ninth or even tenth only was found acceptable.

Proviso to Section 6 of the Act vis-a-vis Newspapers Established Before July 1, 1956

Difficulties arose in cases of authentication of fresh declarations made in respect of newspapers established before July 1, 1956, necessitated on account of change of printer, publisher, periodicity, etc. It was decided, in consultation with the Law Ministry, that where a fresh declaration is filed by such newspapers only to effect a change of the printer or publisher or the place of printing or publication or a change of periodicity, the proviso to Section 6 of the Act should not stand in their way. If however, the declaration in respect of such newspapers became void in terms of Section 5(6) and (7), or the language in which the newspaper was published was sought to be changed, the proviso to Section 6 would operate and a new declaration should not be allowed if it contravened the provisions contained in the proviso to Section 6 of the Act. Similarly, if the title of the newspaper was sought to be changed the proviso to Section 6 would again operate.

An alphabetical index of newspapers published throughout the country is appended to this Report. It will be useful to intending publishers of newspapers in the selection of titles and will also, to some extent, be helpful to Magistrates in the verification of titles, though it will not obviate reference to the Press Registrar as position about existing titles changes from day to day.

Interpretation of Provisions

In the course of administration of the Press and Registration of Books Act and the Rules framed thereunder several points of interpretation of the various sections of the Act and the Rules, especially those relating to the filing of declarations, came up for consideration during the period under review. Some of these are mentioned below :

Place of Declaration

The question arose whether a declaration in respect of a newspaper could be filed by the publisher either where the newspaper was published or where he resided. Similar question also arose in respect of the printer. In consultation with the Law Ministry, it was held that Section 5(2) of the Act which says that a declaration shall be made and subscribed by the printer and the publisher "before a District, Presidency or Sub-Divisional Magistrate within whose local jurisdiction such newspaper shall be published or printed or such publisher or printer resides" gave the discretion to the publisher as well as the printer to file a declaration either where the newspaper is published/printed or where the publisher/printer resides. It was, therefore, not necessary for the publisher of a newspaper (who is also the printer) to file two separate declarations if the place of publication and of printing were different and came within the jurisdiction of different Magistrates. He could file the declaration either where the newspaper was to be printed or published or where he resided.

Another question arose whether in the case of a publication which was printed at one place but was published from another, the publisher could file a declaration at the latter place and the printer at the former. It was held that there was no objection to the printer and publisher making and subscribing two separate declarations at two different places. If, however, the publisher made a declaration at one place, say Delhi, the journal could be published only from Delhi and from no other place. Section 5(2) of the Press and Registration of Books Act does not say that the declarations of the printer and the publisher respectively should be made and subscribed before the same Magistrate.

Specific Mention of Language/Periodicity

It was noticed in some declarations that the publisher did not specify either the language or the periodicity of the publication. In many cases, declarants had mentioned that the publication would be a daily, weekly, fortnightly, etc and the language would be English and some Indian language(s). It was brought to the notice of the Magistrates concerned that according to Section 5(2) of the Act, the periodicity as well as the language of the newspaper must be specific, i.e., the declarant should clearly state whether it would be a daily/weekly/fortnightly, etc. Similarly, in respect of language the declaration must specify the language(s) in which the newspaper would be published.

Separate Declaration for each Newspaper

There were some instances where a publisher made and subscribed one declaration in respect of more than one newspaper. It was pointed out that while there was no limit to the number of newspapers in respect of which a publisher might file declarations, it was necessary that a separate declaration should be made and subscribed in respect of each newspaper.

Change of Language/Periodicity

Section 5 of the Act provides that a new declaration shall be necessary as often as the place of printing or publication was changed. Similarly, whenever the printer or the publisher left India for a period exceeding thirty days, a new declaration would be necessary. During the period under review, the question was raised whether a new declaration would also be necessary whenever there was a change in the language or periodicity of the newspaper from that specified in the declaration. It was decided that in every such case a new declaration would be necessary.

Commencement of Publication

In Section 5(5) of the Act, it has been provided that every declaration made in respect of a newspaper shall be void where the newspaper does not commence publication within the prescribed period. When a declaration has been authenticated, the title of the newspaper has to be considered for all intents and purposes as that of an existing newspaper until the period of grace allowed under the above-quoted rule is over and the newspaper fails to commence publication.

Similarly, under Section 5(6) and (7), the period of grace during which the title of the newspaper has to be protected is provided. In the case of a daily, tri-weekly, bi-weekly, weekly or fortnightly newspaper, a declaration does not cease to have effect if the number of issues published in any three months is at least half the number of issues of what should have been published in accordance with the declaration. Similarly, in the case of a monthly and other papers published at longer intervals, the declaration does not cease to have effect unless the newspaper has remained suspended for a period exceeding 12 months.

There have been instances where publishers having given notice of intention to start a newspaper got a title verified but did not subsequently make and subscribe the declaration. The verified titles in such cases, thus got locked up and could not be allotted to any other intending publisher for a long time. This has raised the question whether any time-limit should be imposed for making and subscribing the declaration after a title has been verified as available and the declarant informed to that effect.

Special Supplements

Another point which arose during the year was whether a newspaper, in addition to its regular issues, can publish supplements, and if so, how many such extra issues could be published, for instance, in the case of a weekly. It was held that a supplement is generally to be understood as an adjunct to the newspaper. If a weekly publishes a supplement the presumption would be that it is an adjunct to its weekly issue. If the intention, however, is that special issues may be published at intervals of less than a week, that would change the very character of that newspaper. It would either become a bi-weekly or a tri-weekly, and if the frequency increases even further, it may be termed as a daily newspaper. Under Section 5 of the Act it is essential that periodicity of the newspaper should be specified. A fresh declaration would become necessary in conformity with the actual periodicity of the publication.

Place of Printing

The question was raised whether the publisher of a newspaper who declares himself also as its printer can arrange for its printing at one or two printing presses, the keeper or owner of which is a third person. It was held that the printer who files the declaration in respect of a newspaper need not necessarily be the keeper of the press where printing is conducted. It would be in order if printing is conducted at more than one press according to the requirements of a newspaper.

CHAPTER IV

DEFINITION OF 'NEWSPAPER': IRREGULAR PUBLICATIONS

In the course of administration of the amended Press and Registration of Books Act, two important issues pertaining to the application of the Act came up for consideration, namely, the definition of the term 'newspaper' and the implications of Section 5(6) and (7) of the Act so far as irregular publications are concerned.

Definition of 'Newspaper'

Newspaper has been defined under Section 1 of the Act as "any printed periodical work containing public news or comments on public news".

There was general misconception that a 'periodical' was not covered by the term 'newspaper' and, accordingly, many journals published monthly or at longer intervals contended that their publication was a 'periodical' and not a 'newspaper'.

Some commercial houses and manufacturing concerns which publish bulletins or house magazines for exclusive distribution, free of charge, among their employees also raised the issue whether their publications were covered by the Act. The same contention was made by some Chambers of Commerce which publish special bulletins for distribution among their members.

Similarly, publishers of some technical and scientific journals as well as those journals which were published by educational and religious institutions claimed exemption from the Act on the ground that their publications were of a specialised nature and they neither published public news or comments on public news nor were they circulated among the public. An Urdu monthly, publishing more or less exclusively fiction, wanted to know whether "small monthlies which do not deal with public news or with comments on public news and publish only 'short stories' would also be included in the category of newspapers".

In contrast, there were others who insisted that their publications should be regarded as newspapers. These included some popular literary magazines serialising fiction which do not come within the definition of 'newspaper' under Section 9 of the Indian Post Office Act and are, therefore, not entitled to postal concession. Some Marathi weeklies represented that a strict interpretation of the definition as given in Section 1 of the Press and Registration of Books Act, would exclude many weeklies and monthlies which were receiving postal concession and rebate of excise duty on newsprint used by them. Publishers of certain law journals, which publish series of volumes, containing case histories and decisions and rulings of High Courts, have claimed that their publications should be regarded as newspapers.

Without attempting an interpretation of the definition of 'newspaper' given in the Act—and it clearly refers to periodical work—it was decided that in the initial compilation of the Register the onus whether a publication is a newspaper or not should be placed on the publisher himself. A declaration made and subscribed under Section 5 of the Act has necessarily to be only in respect of a newspaper and not any other publication. If a publisher had made and subscribed such a declaration, it was decided to presume that his publication (in respect of which he had made and subscribed the declaration) is a newspaper.

It would be necessary later on to elaborate the definition and determine its scope and in the light of that consider exclusion of certain categories of publications, such as serialised fiction, market reports and commercial bulletins, racing schedules and house magazines from the purview of the Act.

Irregular Publications

Prior to the amending Act of 1955, the Press and Registration of Books Act, 1867 did not contain sufficiently effective provisions to ensure regular publication of newspapers. A few State Governments had, however, framed statutory rules on the subject, but the maximum period of interval allowed between the publication of one issue and another was so long that it did not help in ensuring regularity of publication. For instance, the rules framed by the Madhya Pradesh Government provided that :

"If any person, who has declared himself to be Printer or/and Publisher of a newspaper under Section 5 of the Act,—

- (a) does not begin to operate as Printer or/and Publisher within three months of the date of his declaration; or
- (b) does not print or publish for a period of sixty consecutive days, a newspaper printed or published at an interval of less than fifteen days; or
- (c) does not print or publish for a period of six consecutive months, a newspaper printed or published at an interval of fifteen days or more,

his declaration shall be deemed to have been annulled."

Similarly, rules framed by the Punjab Government prescribed different time-limits. Many newspapers brought out editions just often enough to keep the declaration alive; while many others could contravene the relevant provisions of the Act by publishing editions with wrong dates, bearing dates earlier or later than the actual date of publication in order that the declaration should continue to be valid. Even the restriction of a maximum interval between one issue and another did not exist in all the States. The Press Commission recommended that a daily paper should bring out at least 15 issues in any consecutive period of 30 days and a weekly not less than 12 issues in any six months, failure to do which should entail lapsing of the declaration.

New Provisions

In pursuance of this recommendation, Section 5(6) of the amended Act now provides that where, in any period of three months any daily, tri-weekly, bi-weekly, weekly or fortnightly newspaper publishes issues the number of which is less than half of what should have been published in accordance with the declaration made in respect thereof, the declaration shall cease to have effect and a new declaration shall be necessary before the publication of the newspaper can be continued.

Similarly, in respect of newspapers published at longer intervals than a fortnight, the provision under Section 5(7) is that where a newspaper has ceased publication for a period exceeding twelve months, every declaration made in respect thereof shall cease to have effect, and a new declaration shall be necessary before the newspaper can be re-published.

To enforce the above provision it was necessary that a proper watch should be kept on the receipt of every issue of a newspaper. So far, attention has been mainly devoted to ensure that copies of all newspapers published in India are received by the Press Registrar. The slow but steady progress achieved and the leeway yet to be made in this direction have already been discussed in an earlier chapter. Adequate measures are being taken to check whether a newspaper which, for instance, claims to be a daily, is regularly published or at least publishes issues the number of which is not less than half of what should have been published in accordance with its declaration.

Action by State Governments

Some State Governments have kept a watch on the regularity of publication of newspapers published in their territories. For instance, the Punjab Government intimated in November, 1956 that 28 newspapers had, during the quarter ending September 30, 1956, brought out less than half the number of issues which should have been published in accordance with the declarations made in respect thereof, and that these newspapers had continued to be published in October 1956, although the declarations in respect of them had lapsed under Section 5(6) of the Act. Such publishers were, therefore, warned by the District Magistrates concerned for having committed an offence punishable under Section 15 of the Act. They were directed not to print and publish any further issues of their newspapers until they had made fresh declarations under Section 5 of the Act and the same were duly authenticated as required under Section 6 of the Act.

Similarly, the State Press Officer, Delhi Administration, forwarded to the Press Registrar, in December 1956 and January 1957, lists of newspapers and periodicals published in Delhi which had brought out issues the number of which was less than half of what should have been published in accordance with their declarations during the quarter ending September 30, 1956. The Delhi Administration were apprised of the action taken by the Punjab Government in this respect and were advised that they might also follow the same procedure. They were further requested to keep a strict watch on the number of issues such defaulting newspapers might publish during the subsequent months. It is proposed to address other State Governments on the subject in order to ensure uniformity of procedure throughout India.

New Publications

Before the amended Act was enforced, it was open to any person to file a declaration but it was not incumbent on him to start the paper within any specified period after the declaration. For this purpose, the Press Laws Inquiry Committee and the Press Commission recommended the amendment of the Act, the former fixing a period of three months for all newspapers irrespective of periodicity and the latter fixing a period of a fortnight in the case of dailies, a month in the case of weeklies and three months in the case of monthlies, between the date of declaration and the actual commencement of publication.

Section 5(5) of the amended Act now provides that every declaration made in respect of a newspaper shall be void where the newspaper does not commence publication :

- (a) Within six weeks of the declaration, in the case of a newspaper to be published once a week or oftener;

- (c) Within three months of the declaration, in the case of any other newspaper

And in every such case, a new declaration shall be necessary before the newspaper can be published

On receipt of a declaration, a watch has to be kept whether the newspaper commenced publication within the prescribed time-limit. A sure test is the receipt by the Press Registrar of a copy of the first issue of the newspaper and copies of subsequent issues regularly as required under Section 11B of the Act read with Rule 5 of the Registration Rules. During the period under review very few publishers complied with this provision on their own initiative.

Every publisher of a new newspaper was, therefore, contacted at the expiry of the prescribed period, and enquiries made whether he had commenced publication and, if so, from what date, his attention being drawn to his obligation to send a copy of every issue to the Press Registrar. In some cases, it was learnt that the paper had already commenced publication but in most cases either there was no reply from the publisher or it was intimated that the newspaper had not yet commenced publication. In the latter case, the publisher was informed about the provisions of Section 5(5) of the Act regarding the time-limit within which the newspaper should have commenced publication and if the newspaper was still intended to be published, a fresh declaration was necessary.

CHAPTER V

STATISTICS OF NEWSPAPERS

Number of Newspapers

The steps taken to compile, revise and finalise an authentic list of newspapers published in India have been described in detail in Chapter II. According to this list, on July 1, 1956, there was a total number of 6417 newspapers in the country. During the period July 1 to December 31, 1956 the number of new newspapers which commenced publication was 207 while 44 existing newspapers ceased publication. Thus there were 6,580 newspapers in existence on December 31, 1956.

Bombay has the highest number of newspapers (1,271) followed by West Bengal (1,129), Uttar Pradesh (756), Madras (717) and Delhi (660). The number of newspapers published in these four States and Delhi constitutes two-thirds of the total number of newspapers published in the country. The number of newspapers in the remaining States varies between 34 (Assam) and 426 (Punjab) while that in the remaining Union Territories varies between 4 (Himachal Pradesh) and 17 (Manipur). No newspaper is published in Andaman and Nicobar Islands and Laccadive Minicoy and Amindivi Islands.

New Publications

During the period under review no fresh paper was started in Assam and Orissa, while Bihar and Kerala did not report cessation of any existing newspaper. The highest number (70) of newspapers which came into existence during the period was in Bombay while the highest number (25) of those which ceased publication was in the Punjab.

The table below shows the number of newspapers in existence in each State on July 1 and December 31, 1956 and the number of newspapers which commenced and ceased publication during the period:

NUMBER OF NEWSPAPERS ACCORDING TO LANGUAGE & PERIODICITY

CHAPTER VI

CIRCULATION

The basic information about circulation is derived from the Annual Statement furnished by newspapers. Though under the law these statements were to be furnished by the publishers on or before February 28, 1957, a large number of these were received only in March and still many others in April, 1957. The receipt of more statements was awaited in order to extend the field of study, making it more comprehensive and meaningful. Again, apart from the study of trends in circulation, the returns were to be consulted for other purposes, such as the finalisation of the list of newspapers and the study of trends in common ownership. Very little time was, therefore, available to make an elaborate study of all aspects of circulation and of ownership discussed in the next chapter.

Publishers of newspapers were required to furnish particulars of circulation under three heads, namely, number of copies (i) printed, (ii) sold and (iii) distributed free. It was also provided that publishers' statement in respect of circulation should be countersigned by a Chartered Accountant or a qualified Auditor where the average number of copies printed per publishing day exceeded 2,000.

Annual Statement pertaining to the period under review was submitted by only 2,625 newspapers out of the total number of 6,570 newspapers supposed to be published on December 31, 1956. After preliminary scrutiny, particulars of circulation in respect of 222 newspapers were found incomplete or discrepant and could not, accordingly, be included in the study.

In discussing the circulation of newspapers, separate figures have been given of copies sold and distributed free as well as the combined total. The circulation of a newspaper for the purpose of this study represents the aggregate of copies sold and distributed free.

The publishers were required to submit monthly figures as well as half-yearly (July—December, 1956) averages of copies printed, sold and distributed free. There are 100 newspapers which were started at different dates during the period under review and which have furnished the Annual Statement. In the case of such newspapers, especially those which started publication towards the end of the year, half-yearly averages could not be made available. The averages worked out on the basis of the actual period of their existence were not strictly comparable with the averages of the other newspapers, in existence on July 1, 1956. These have, therefore, been dealt with separately. The study of circulation data thus covers a detailed analysis in respect of newspapers in existence on July 1, 1956, and a brief analysis of the newspapers which came into existence during the period under review. The combined circulation of these two sets of newspapers is also shown in a table at the end of the chapter.

It may be pointed out that the 2,303 newspapers taken into account for this study include practically all important newspapers of different categories and their circulation constitutes the bulk of the total newspaper circulation in the country, notwithstanding the fact that their number is only about one-third of the total number of newspapers supposed to be published.

The available data have been analysed, firstly on the basis of different periodicities, secondly for all recognised languages and for bi-lingual and multi-lingual newspapers, and thirdly on the basis of different periodicities in the various languages.

Total Periodicity-wise Circulation

An analysis of the available data indicates that the total circulation of 2 303 newspapers comes to 92.1 lakh (sold 76.6 lakh, free 15.5 lakh). The three most important categories namely weekly, monthly and daily newspapers, command a circulation of 26.8 lakh, 25.2 lakh and 24.6 lakh respectively. Fortnightly newspapers have a circulation of 8.8 lakh, while the remaining categories have only 6.7 lakh. Details of circulation figures in respect of newspapers classified according to periodicity are indicated in the table below.

The circulation trends of newspapers of different periodicities, namely, dailies, weeklies, fortnightlies, monthlies and "others" are discussed separately below.

Daily Newspapers

The total circulation of 212 daily newspapers is 24.6 lakh (sold 23.2 lakh, free 1.4 lakh). English dailies command a circulation of 7.3 lakh or nearly one-third of the total circulation of dailies. Next in order of importance are Hindi (3.4 lakh), Gujarati (2.7 lakh) and Marathi (2.3 lakh). Dailies of other languages commanding a circulation of over one lakh are Tamil (1.7 lakh), Malayalam (1.5 lakh), Urdu (1.2 lakh) and Kannada (1.1 lakh). Details regarding the circulation of daily newspapers are given in the table below:

NUMBER & CIRCULATION OF NEWSPAPERS

(AS ON 31st DEC., 1956)

OWNERSHIP

As in the case of circulation, the basis for the study of ownership also is provided in the particulars furnished in the Annual Statement. After preliminary scrutiny of the 2,625 Annual Statements received, it was found that 253 returns contained either incomplete information or details which required verification. Still many others did not contain requisite details disclosing effective ownership. The present study is thus confined to 2,367 newspapers about which the basic particulars of ownership are available.

For a study of the various aspects of the problem of ownership it is necessary that the data should not only be comprehensive or at least as broad-based as possible, but the particulars to be studied should also be so detailed as to disclose effective ownership, particularly in respect of ownership belonging to chains, groups and multiple units. The problem of concentration of ownership cannot be probed effectively unless the identity of persons who own or control newspaper undertakings is clearly revealed. While forwarding the proforma for filling the Annual Statement, it was specifically mentioned in the covering letter to the publishers that full particulars should be provided to disclose effective ownership and that the names of all partners or share-holders holding more than one per cent. of the capital should be given. An examination of the returns, however, has revealed that whereas some publishers have carefully furnished the required information in detail, some others have recorded only evasive or ambiguous entries.

The Rules provide that before making any entry in the Register of Newspapers the Press Registrar may make such verification of statements furnished to him by a publisher as he may consider necessary. For the purpose of collection and verification of any information relating to a newspaper, the Press and Registration of Books Act confers on the Press Registrar powers of access to and inspection of any relevant record or document in the possession of the publisher. Without having recourse to these powers, it is desirable that publishers should, for the sake of a complete and objective study of newspaper organisation, voluntarily disclose the necessary information without any fear or misgiving.

General Pattern of Ownership

The present study, which is confined to 2,367 newspapers, in respect of which information is available, can serve as a basis for further investigation in the coming years. However, the pattern of ownership disclosed under various categories of newspapers classified according to States, periodicity and language is of considerable interest as the newspapers covered constitute a fairly representative cross-section of the industry. It has also been possible to compile lists of newspapers belonging to some important chains, groups, and multiple units.

Table I shows the State-wise distribution of newspapers taken into account for the study of ownership. It would be seen that the most predominant form of ownership is the individual owner which accounts for 44 per cent. of the total. The next in importance is the ownership by societies or associations, including religious organisations. Joint stock companies represent ownership of 10 per cent. newspapers and firms and partnerships together about 8 per cent. Educational institutions own about 7 per cent. newspapers and Government publications account for 5 per cent. of the total number of classified newspapers.

Common Ownership

Common ownership of more than one newspaper has been studied under three categories, namely,

- (i) Chains i.e. publication of more than one newspaper under common ownership from more than one centre.
- (ii) Groups i.e. publication of more than one newspaper under common ownership from the same centre.
- (iii) Multiple Units i.e. publication of more than one newspaper of the same title, language and periodicity under same ownership at different centres.

A brief analysis of the existing chains, groups and multiple units as found in the available data is given below:

Chains

There are in all nine chains comprising 62 newspapers, of which 37 are dailies, 15 weeklies, seven fortnightlies, two monthlies and one quarterly. The total circulation commanded by these newspapers is approximately 18 lakh. The Express Newspapers limited is the largest chain covering 13 newspapers. The Hindustan Times-Leader-Searchlight Chain (or combine) controls 12 newspapers. Included in the category of chains are the six editions of the 'American Reporter' issued by the United States Information Service.

Multiple Units

There are eight multiple units consisting of a total number of 28 daily newspapers which command a circulation of over 2 lakh. Of these 'Vishwamitra' is published from four different centres. This category also includes a unit (Jagran) which is somewhat distinct from the multiple units inasmuch as its ownership is not common. This is, in fact, what the Press Commission described as "Associated Unit" i.e. "dailies having outward appearance of a multiple unit but having different ownership, but generally a common policy." 'Jagran' is published from four different centres.

NATURE OF CONTENTS AND GENERAL FEATURES

Sample Study

In order to have an idea of the general nature of contents of newspapers a sample study of 1,533 newspapers published in different languages was undertaken. An ad hoc questionnaire was framed for the purpose and the scrutiny of newspapers was conducted by the language officers of the Press Information Bureau at Delhi and its regional offices at Bombay, Calcutta, Madras, Jullundur, Bangalore, Ernakulum, Gauhati and Cuttack. The number of papers examined for this sample study represents 23 per cent of the total number of newspapers. The following table shows the language-wise break-down of newspapers scrutinised and their proportion to the total number of newspapers.

For this study a certain number of issues of newspapers of different periodicities were picked up at random. Thus eight issues, not necessarily consecutive, were chosen for the examination of dailies, four for tri-weeklies, bi-weeklies, weeklies and fortnightlies, two for monthlies and one or more for others.

Two Broad Categories

The newspapers have, in the first instance, been classified into two broad categories, namely, "General Interest Newspapers" and "Periodicals". This has been done on the lines of classification devised by UNESCO. According to this classification, the "General Interest Newspaper" has been defined as a "periodical publication, put on sale to the general public which serves its readers as an initial source of written news of current events in the fields of public affairs, international affairs, politics, government, etc.". This category excludes specialised newspapers but local newspapers are included. The term 'initial source' has been used in order to exclude periodicals such as weekly news magazines whose function is to select, summarise or comment on events which have already been reported in newspapers. According to this definition, therefore, "General Interest Newspaper" includes all general interest dailies, and those general interest non-daily publications (such as Sunday newspapers) which resemble dailies in that they give principal attention to the events of the 24 hours preceding their going to press. Also included are those non-daily periodical publications in the general interest field whose news coverage extends over a wider period of time but which, either because they are local or because they have no competitors, serve as an initial source of general news for their readership.

The term "Periodical" covers publications varying widely in content and purpose, and in circulation, method of reproduction and frequency of issue. Periodicals may range from the popular weekly magazine of general information to the specialised scientific journal, and include specialised newspapers etc.

According to these definitions it was found that out of the total number of 1,533 newspapers examined 475 or 31 per cent. were "General Interest Newspapers" and 1,058 or 69 per cent. "Periodicals". Of the 475 newspapers of the former category, 258 were dailies and 217 weeklies. While all dailies examined were found to be "General Interest Newspapers" only 38 per cent. of the total number of weeklies examined came under this category.

The following table shows the language-wise break-down of the total number of newspapers examined into the two broad categories:

Newspaper Utilising News Agency Services

The daily and weekly newspapers included in the category of "General Interest Newspapers" were also examined to ascertain how many of them availed of the services of news agencies. The table below shows the number of newspapers using news agency services and their percentage to the total :

Illustrated Newspapers

The table below shows the periodicity-wise break-down of newspapers carrying pictures, photographs, cartoons and comic strips. It would be seen that the percentage of newspapers carrying pictures and photograph is the highest in the case of monthlies and the lowest in that of weeklies. While the percentage of daily newspapers carrying cartoons and comic strips is 28 and 21 respectively, the percentage of periodicals of all other frequencies carrying cartoons and comic strips ranges between 6 and 11.

Nature of Contents

The periodicals (1,058) have been further classified broadly under 27 subjects as shown in the table below. The largest number is of those dealing with news and current affairs. Those dealing with literary and cultural subjects and religion and philosophy come next. Taken together, periodicals belonging to these three categories constitute 54 per cent of the total number of periodicals scrutinised.

The following table shows the periodicity-wise classification of periodicals according to the nature of their contents :

CHAPTER IX

CATALOGUE OF NEWSPAPERS

In the following pages are given separate catalogues of newspapers published in each State and Union Territory. The catalogue for every State and Territory is divided into two parts, viz., List A and List B.

List A consists of such newspapers about which the Press Registrar has either obtained the particulars necessary for incorporation in the Register of Newspapers or received copies of issues. The particulars were called for in an ad hoc 'Statement of Facts' as well as in the Annual Statement which was to be furnished by all publishers as a statutory obligation.

List B comprises newspapers in respect of which the Press Registrar has neither received any of the above-noted documents nor copies of their issues. But they have been retained on the list on the authority of the State Governments concerned who have vouched for their existence either on the basis of the receipt of copies of issues or on some other ground. In the case of a few papers included in the list the State Governments are not yet in a position to definitely certify their cessation.

As described in an earlier chapter the process of collecting particulars directly from newspapers is continuing and with its completion all existing newspapers will be ultimately brought on to List A. In some States, like the Punjab, Mysore and Madhya Pradesh the number of newspapers which still continue on List B has been considerably reduced by this process but in others, like Bihar, Bombay, Orissa and West Bengal it is proportionately still very high.

The catalogue for each State is classified on the basis of periodicity and language. The different periodicities are given in the order : dailies, tri-weeklies, bi-weeklies, weeklies, fortnightlies, monthlies, quarterlies and 'other periodicities', the last including newspapers published thrice-a-month, four-monthly, half-yearly, annually, etc. Under each periodicity the newspapers of various languages have been shown in the following order, namely, English, Hindi and the other languages specified in the Constitution, in alphabetical order, beginning with Assamese and ending with Urdu. Next, minor languages, like Sindhi, Gorkhali, Manipuri etc. are shown together under "Others". Bi-lingual and multi-lingual newspapers are given at the end.

The catalogue of newspapers for each State is preceded by a brief introduction which, apart from giving some basic facts like area, population and percentage of literacy, mentions some salient features of newspapers published in the State. The first table gives the number of newspapers as on July 1, 1956 and on December 31, 1956, and the number of newspapers which started or ceased publication during the period under review. The second table gives a break-down of the total number of newspapers published in English, Hindi and the regional and other important languages of the State. The last table indicates the number of newspapers published from the State Capitals, from towns with a population of over one lakh and from other towns with a population of less than one lakh.

The catalogues for States and Union Territories are given separately in alphabetical order. No newspaper is published from the Andaman and Nicobar Islands and the Laccadive, Minicoy and Amindivi Islands.

The list of indications given in the beginning of each catalogue explains the signs used for showing newspapers in respect of which Annual Statements have been received and those which started publication during the period July 1 to December 31, 1956.
